TRENDS THAT ARE CHANGING PLANNING AND TREATMENT IN PERIODONTICS AND IMPLANT DENTISTRY

8:30-12:00

This presentation will review some of the emerging trends in both surgical and restorative thinking and treatment, and how they are changing today's clinical landscape. The common goal for all clinicians is to provide ideal care with proven materials and predictable concepts from surgery through to restoration. However, early adoption of emerging technologies and innovations may challenge this philosophy.

The objectives of this presentation include reviews of specific concepts and the clinician's experiences in the following areas:

- A critical review of current procedural and concept advancements in implant dentistry that are enhancing the quality of patient care.
- Digital/virtual planning, communication, documentation, and treatment. How this technology is changing the surgical and restorative landscape. Simplified protocols to implement this approach into daily practice.
- Strategies to minimize bone loss- literature and opinions.
- Soft tissue grafting to improve esthetics, tissue quality and long-term stability: understand the role of new grafting procedures and material alternatives and where they apply.
- Applying delayed vs. immediate treatment surgical and restorative protocols. Why, when, and how.
